Architect Is Studying Plan For Project

New Wing Will Hold 50 to 75 More Students

ANNEXES FAIL TO MEET NEEDS.

Board of Governors Realize Expansion Necessary — Number of Resident Students Has Increased Yearly — 73 Co-Eds Now Housed Active consideration is being given by the Board of Governors of McGill University to the question of building an extension to the Royal Victoria College in order to provide additional accommodation of from 50 to 75 more resident students.

Major Percy E. Nobbs, Professor of Design in the School of Architecture at the University, is at present engaged in carrying out a preliminary study of the situation in order to arrive at the most feasible solution of the problem. When Professor Nobbs makes his report to the Board of Governors it is probable that the exact nature of the new addition will be made public.

The present building known as the Royal Victoria College and the two annexes, one on University Street opposite the Montreal High School and the other consisting of a number of rooms in the Apartments at the corner of Sherbrooke and Shuter Streets, are quite unable to accommodate the large number of women students that each year apply for admittance.

Action Necessary

The University authorities have decided that something must be done to rectify the situation, either in the form of a wing added to the present Royal Victoria College building or erection of another distinct building that would serve as another annex and house between 50 to 75 students. It is probable that if such a building were erected that the two buildings now used as annexes may be closed and the residents housed in the new edifice. On the other hand, the two annexes now in use may be continued to be used as such as well as the new addition, provided that the increase in resident students requires such a move.

Every year since 1925, when the University Street annex was opened the number of resident students has been on the upward trend. The Royal Victoria College can accommodate 55 students, in 1925 the two buildings housed 59 students. During the 1926-27 and 27-28 sessions there

"Bootlegging Establishment" — Sheriff Calls Fraternity House When A.M. Raid Discloses Liquor

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., Nov. 18.—What authorities called a collegiate bootlegging establishment was revealed yesterday, when Sheriff Elmer Shoaf raided the sumptuous Gamma Eta Gamma fraternity house at the University of Illinois and arrested three students, members of the fraternity and students in the university college of law.

Sheriff Shoaf awakened the sleeping fraternity men at 4 a.m., and with his deputies, searched the house, room by room, while its pajama-clad inhabitants remonstrated in vain.

When the raid was completed, the officers removed their captives and carried out with them armloads of what they described as "ten gallons of alcohol and other liquor of various quantities."

"Pint Here, Pint There"
The sheriff said they found "a pint here and a pint there," until they

Ticket Advance Sale For "Dear Brutus" Heavy

That the Players' Club presentation of "Dear Brutus" by Sir James Barrie will be a success is already indicated by the advance sale of tickets, which, the business managers state, is unusually large in volume.

Rehearsals have been progressing steadily for some time and everything has gone off smoothly. The committee in charge of the scenery promises something original and effective while the costumes also are novel and well thought out.

Regular tickets cost $1.10 but the student's special rate will be 75 cents. The tickets may be obtained from class or faculty representatives. These are: Arts, L. Gales, R. Sutherland, P. Stuart, L. Friedman, K. Dunn; Commerce, H. MacCartney, H. Smith, E. Broadhead, S. Wener, G. Kyle, G. How, S. Webster; Science, H. Henwood, W. McConnell, D. Denny; Law, G. Nichols; Medicine, P. Hills, J. ## Parties Hold Wind-up Today

Campaign Finish Takes Place on Steps of Arts Building

SESSION TOMORROW

Effigy of Prime Minister is Burnt by Mob of Women

The local headquarters of both political parties were bustling last night when final preparations were made for the joint mass meeting which will be held on the stairs of the Arts Building at one o'clock, noon, today. This is the wind-up of the campaign before the session tomorrow evening.

The Prime Minister, the Rt. Hon. Lovell C. Carrall arrived from his residence at Ste. Germaine de Trois Pistoilles by special train last night, accompanied by his henchmen. He spoke confidently of the success of his government on Wednesday evening, when the session will be held in the Ballroom of the Union. He further declared that he would be in a position to announce a dark horse minister at the mass meeting today, whom he feels certain will add dignity to the present heavy battery of speakers which he already has in his cabinet.

Hon. David Lewis, in a private interview to the Daily, stated last night that he would make a special appeal to the women to turn out for the session, as he felt sure that they would like to see how he will rout the present government from office, together with its machinations against the power of women, who really are permanent.

Student Will Stage Flight During Week

McGill a Pioneer in Intercollegiate Aviation

BIG MEETING

Prof. McKergow, Col. Bovey and Capt. Finnie Address Students

The first Intercollegiate Flight ever staged in Canada will take place sometime during this week, when Claude Morrison, the president of the McGill Light Aeroplane Club will fly to Toronto to visit our sister flying club.

The plane for this epochal flight is being supplied through the kindness of the Curtiss-Reed Aircraft. This company does not fly any of their machines at this time of the year without one of their own men. For this reason "Gaff" Edwards, a brilliant young pilot of considerable fame in Montreal, will accompany Mr. Morrison on his adventure. Both these men are possessors of a Commercial Pilot's License. A notice will be given as to the exact time of departure, and the Light Aeroplane Club will turn out in a body to witness the take-off of this history-making trip.

This welcome piece of news was announced at a meeting of the McGill Light Aeroplane Club, held last night in the Physics Building after the weekly Aviation Lecture, by Professor McKergow.

Hon. President Speaks

The meeting opened with a fund of information from the Honorary President, Col. Bovey, who is the sponsor of the most successful extension course on aeronautical subjects.

Economics Club Meets Thursday

S. Elhin and R. K. Martin to Read Papers on Northwest

"The New Economic Development of the Canadian Northwest" is the topic to be discussed at the next meeting of the Political Economy Club which takes place Thursday, November 21, at 8.15 in the men's smoking room of the Arts Building. Seymour Elhin and R. K. Martin, senior honour students in Economics and Political Science, will deliver the papers.

The discussion will centre around recent progress and development in Northwest Canada, hitherto considered of little value both from the point of view of habitation and physical resources. It will also embrace an analysis of the respective parts played by the aeroplane and railway, and the probable tendencies of this movement.

Within the past few years the achievements in this part of the Dominion have been well-nigh incredible. Not only have large mineral resources been discovered and developed but large agricultural potentialities are also being considered, and much capital is being raised for their exploitation. The "barren lands" of Canada are being shown of their infertility and unproductiveness. Both speakers will endeavour to render a complete survey of the various ramifications of this new development.

The executive urges every student in economics to attend. All others interested are also cordially invited. At the conclusion of the program, refreshments will be served.

Maccabaeans To Make Whoopie In Mount Royal

Tickets for the annual formal dance of the Maccabean Circle, to be held in the Plaza of the Mount Royal Hotel on November 27, are being snatched up rapidly by disconcerting students but a few remain for those who know that their highest expectations will be fulfilled.

The dance has always been a well-attended function in the past and the profits have been sufficiently large to purchase a number of books for the Redpath Library. It is hoped that this practice will be carried out again this year and this will be the case if the dance is a financial success.

Isadore Aspler and his matchless orchestra will provide the music for the evening to the satisfaction of all. The Committee in charge of the affair are as follows: the Misses Sylvia Cohen, Dorothy Priddy, Elise Green, Beatrice Rosenbaum, Vera Schickman, and Lillian Wilanski, and the Messrs. Seymour Elkin, Harry Herman, Max Kaufman, Jack Kaufman, A. Klein, Harold Lande, David Lewis, Lionel Rubin, and Seymour Wener. Tickets may be obtained from any of the above for $5.50 per couple.

Arts '33 Present Play This Week

Exceptional Ability Displayed at Full-Dress Performance

ANNUAL PLAY

Thursday Afternoon and Friday Night are Presentation Dates

A full dress rehearsal of the freshman play, "Ralph Roister Doister," is being held in Moyse Hall tonight. There will be two performances of the play Thursday, November 21st, at five o'clock for the freshman class, and Friday at 8.30 for students and friends of McGill University.

The class of English 13, under whose direction the play is to be produced, have almost completed the scenery for the production, which, together with the work on the lighting plot, costumes, and make-up has occupied their attention for the past month.

The play calls for some very difficult character acting, but in every case, the cast is admirably suited to the parts they have to play.

Much Ability

The role of Matthew Merrygreeke is the one which calls for the greatest display of ability, and Wallace Erskine, who plays the part, could not possibly have been better suited to the role. He is an actor possessing great natural ability for comedy, together with the self-assurance essential to portray such a difficult part.

The title role is well handled by Phil French, who plays the part of the typical sixteenth century bragging roisterer, with remarkable success.

Library Opens Book Exhibit

Childrens Reading Material for All Ages Featured

School-books and story-books for children were placed on display in the exhibition gallery of the Redpath Library yesterday to celebrate the opening of Childrens Book Week. The very latest and most modern literature for children is to be seen side by side with material that was read by the children of the last century. Old and new school-books are shown. In fact, all manner of literature suitable for a child, from the time he first understands pictures and colours, until he reaches his early teens, is to be seen in this display.

Special sections are devoted to works on travel, Biblical literature, French books for children, books of 1929 childrens reading material of the last century, and also a large number of pictures and posters dealing with juvenile literature. The exhibit was prepared under the

THE OATH OF HIPPOCRATES

(Written about 500 B.C. and until a few years ago subscribed to by every medical student on graduation from McGill; translation by Francis Adams.)

I swear by Apollo the physician, and Aesculapius, and health, and all-heal, and all the Gods and Goddesses, that, according to my ability and judgment, I will keep this oath and this stipulation—to reckon him who taught me this art equally dear to me as my parents, to share my substance with him, and relieve his necessities if required, to look upon his offspring in the same footing as my own brothers, and to teach them this art, if they shall wish to learn it, without fee or stipulation, and that by precept, lecture, and every other mode of instruction, I will impart a knowledge of the art to my sons, and those of my teachers, and to disciples bound by stipulation and oath according to the law of medicine, but to none others. I will follow the system of regimen which, according to my ability and judgment, I consider for the benefit of my patients, and abstain from whatever is deleterious and mischievous. I will give no deadly medicine to anyone if asked, nor suggest any such counsel, and in like manner I will not give to a woman a pessary to produce abortion. With purity and with holiness I will pass my life and practice my art. I will not cut persons laboring under the stone, but will leave this to be done by men who are practitioners of this work. Into whatever houses I enter, I will go into them for the benefit of the sick, and will abstain from every voluntary act of mischief and corruption, and further, from the seduction of females or males, of freemen and slaves. Whatever, in connection with my professional practice, or not in connection with it, I see or hear, in the life of man, which ought not to be spoken of abroad, I will not divulge, as reckoning that all such should be kept secret. While I continue to keep this oath unviolated, may it be granted to me to enjoy life and the practice of the art, respected by all men, in all times, but should I trespass and violate this oath, may the reverse be my lot.

THREE IN ONE WEATHER HERE

Snow, Rain and Sleet Recorded Yesterday at Observatory

Snow, rain and sleet fell yesterday marking the approach of the winter season. Soon after 6 o'clock in the morning a mixture of rain and snow was experienced which was followed at intervals with a slight fall of sleet. Official's at McGill Observatory stated that this was a typical late fall storm. The temperature dropped below the freezing mark by one degree overnight, enabling snow to fall but changed this to a mixture of rain and snow, with a sprinkling of hail and sleet.

Little damage was experienced from the storm, as the temperatures were not low enough to cause the mixture to stick to limbs of trees and telegraph wires.

Woman Granted Theolog Degree

University of Geneva Breaks Time-Honoured Custom

Geneva, Nov. 18.—The University of Geneva has for the first time granted a degree in theology to a woman student. This ancient seat of learning founded by John Calvin has always continued the policy of antifeminism though lately it has been modified by the "Established Church of the Republic of Geneva."

There was considerable opposition to Miss Bard's ambitions but her thesis on "Knowledge and Performance of God's Will as the Chief Duty and Purpose of Man" was considered to entitle her to special consideration. The influence of powerful relatives however, was necessary to secure her matriculation and the full exertion of her abilities to keep her at the University at all.

Curiously enough, it is the Theological Faculty which has been the most radical at Geneva for some time, being bitterly opposed by all the other faculties. However, under the leadership of the present dean, Rev. Dr. Eugene Choisy, this faculty recently won a species of autonomy, Calvin's theories of the "Utter Depravity of Human Nature" and of the civil arm as the "Preserver of the Church Purity" as well as his predestinationism are rarely stressed by Geneva theologians. On the whole the university is becoming more and more liberal, having admitted several more women students.

Mrs. Carter broadcasted last night over Station CFCF from 6.00 to 6.30 o'clock and gave readings in French and English. A special broadcast for children over Station CFCF is being arranged for Thursday evening from 7.30 to 8.00 o'clock.

Golden Rule Is Still Basis Of Medical Ethics

Dr. Chipman Addresses Medical Society

CROWDED HALL

Code of Hippocrates Outstanding Through Centuries

The largest audience that the Medical undergraduates Society has seen for a long time jammed the Assembly Hall of the Medical building last night for the Medical Profession of Obstetrics at McGill, proclaim the undying code of ethics of the great guild of the Medical Profession, which he summed up in four words—honesty, decency, and human kindness. "Each one of us is to strive toward this counsel of perfection," ended the speaker, "So that we may become, each one of us 'A man ripened in wisdom, walking as a physician.'"

Dr. Chipman spoke on the subject of "Medical Ethics" before the Society as one about to leave the University after seventeen years association with it as a professor of obstetrics. In speaking for the students after the talk the vote of thanks was more than the usual appreciation for the address, and expression was given of the feelings of the students at the loss of a professor who has always played a large part in the life of the University.

Very few men repent their choice of medicine as a profession enough to change it. Dr. Chipman informed his hearers, "I need not remind you that you are committed, each of you, to study and practice of medicine." He said, "In time, you will each become a member of this noble profession."

Your choice in life has been made, and the chances are that you will not change it. Having embarked on the career, the first steps are towards the taking of the degree. It is during this time that the student should explore his capability, and test himself out for his natural bent whether he should go into practice or take up a specialty. In this matter teachers and colleagues may render invaluable aid.

Dr. Chipman emphasised strongly the necessity of a student taking up a hospital service after his graduation. "I do not care what you are about to do. By hook or by crook you must get this service," he said. The tendency in medicine today, as in everything else, is towards the specialty, but, but before everything else, the sine qua non in medical work is a sound general training. For the man who has not a wise general training, his judgement in respect of diagnosis, prognosis, and treatment remains always ill-balanced and untrue.

Medical Ethics

As he came to the subject proper of his address, emphasis was laid on the principles underlying the codes that are adopted. The implied obligation is best expressed in the rule "To do unto others as you would they should do unto you." It is an ideal that in an imperfect world, cannot be more than a goal, and until we become perfect, as the speaker put it, "We require a code of ethics to guide us in our professional lives."

Dr. Chipman had with him a copy (Continued on page four)

Forsey Speaks To Labor Club

Election of Officers to Take Place After Meeting

"Can We Conquer Unemployment?" is the subject of the address to be given by Eugene Forsey to the members of the Labour Club, who will hold their meeting tonight at 8.00 p.m. After the address officers will be elected.

As in other years, the Club in adhering to its plan of having outside speakers address the members at every alternate meeting. The speaker at tonight's meeting, Eugene Forsey, is sessional lecturer in Economics and Political Science at McGill, and was a Rhodes scholar. He obtained his B.A. degree at Balliol College, Oxford, with honours in Modern Greats, and during the last year, did research work on the migration problem of Canada.

The club has been re-organized by a temporary committee consisting of Carl Bergthorn, Phil Matthews, Albert Marcus, and Edward Knoch.

A SECOND CALL

ONCE again a call goes out to the women students of McGill University to attend a general meeting of the McGill Women's Student Society called for next Thursday afternoon at four o'clock.

The hour is a satisfactory one for the majority of students and the question is an important one. This combination may bring together the largest body of co-eds that has ever met within the confines of the university, for it is well-known that if a sufficient number of students attend a definite course of action will be taken.

The registrar informs us that there are now over 500 women's students at the university. Surely over 100 of these will be willing to devote an hour in order that some decision may be taken on the question of the M.W.S.S. with the Students' Council, a question which has been hanging fire for several weeks.

Looking at the question reflectively, it seems to us that this is an opportunity for the women students to further solidify their position in the university. The men have held too important a position around McGill for several years. Year by year the number of co-eds at the university have been increasing. Have they been taking a correspondingly increasing part in the direction of student activities? We think not.

Let us state here, however, that this has not been the fault of the women students. The co-eds have had to force their way into every part of the university. They have been always demanding—and receiving not frequently enough. They had to force their way into the university in the first place. Lady candidates to the teaching staff were admitted reluctantly. Attempts are being made by the last of the die-hards to keep women students out of certain university buildings.

Now an opportunity is given the women students to obtain entrance into the students' governing body of the university. Today, the Students' Council is actually not a students' council in the full sense of the term. It is not representative of all the students at the university. More than 500 women students have not any "say" in the majority of important matters settled in regard to students' activities. Will the women students remedy this condition? We believe so if they can be convinced of the importance of the issue of the meeting next Thursday afternoon.

Union of the women student's governing body and that of the men's follows naturally upon the trend of women today in entering all walks of life, many of which have not been open until recently to women. Advance movements should come from within the university because it is in the university that one expects to find the most far-sighted individuals, who later become the leaders in their respective communities. If the two organizations concerned unite following a decision at the meeting next Thursday afternoon, this will constitute an advance movement.

A challenge is thrown out to the women students of McGill. Can they get one-fifth of their number to attend an important meeting? The women students will not be able to lay the blame for inaction, if nothing is decided, upon the men students of the university. They will have been given their second chance following next Thursday's meeting. We hope that the co-eds at McGill will come to a decision, one which will allow them to go ahead with negotiations for union of the two students' governing bodies.

A CALENDAR OF EVENTS

DURING the past few weeks there have occurred several conflicts with regards to the dates of various extra-curricular activities. The Daily has done its best to inform the student body about coming events, both in advances and in the What's On column, but it is now cognizant of the fact that a fuller means must be undertaken.

Therefore it now asks for the co-operation of all student activities, social, educational, cultural or athletic, that the officers of the various organizations send in by Thursday of each week a list of its meetings or activities for the coming week, to be published every Saturday. These should be handed in at the Tuck Shop or the Daily Office. No information can be received over the phone.

Major activities have even during the last week come into conflict with regard to dates, namely, The Music Club and Choral Society, the Debating Union Society and the Players' Club. We would suggest that when a definite day each week or two weeks is the custom then any conflict should be settled mutually, as in the case where the Labour Club conflicted with the Historical Association. If this cannot be arranged then it would be better if a higher body were named to determine dates.

APPOINTMENT

THE McGill Daily takes pleasure in announcing the appointment of N. Whitman Morton to be an Associate Editor on its staff, in charge of Friday's issues.

The THEATRE

A Diplomatic Story at the Orpheum

DIPLOMACY in a most intrinsically clever form is being presented at the Orpheum this week. The play, "The Command to Love" by Rudolf Lothar and Fritz Gottwald abounds in humor and witty dialogue throughout.

The story centers about a young philanderer of Paris who has been made military attaché to the French Embassy in Spain. How the attaché's official diplomatic position gets him in a most awkward place and how his diplomatic ability finally clears the horizon is a story that should not be revealed through any other medium than the play itself.

The honors of the evening are due to Miss Margaret Brayton, Victor Sutherland, and Roy Elkins, who formed the nucleus for a strong cast. Margaret Brayton, the wife of the Spanish Minister of War, was excellent as the flirtatious woman who makes a show of extreme morality while actually giving herself up to the attaché's diplomatic advances. Victor Sutherland's consistent portrayals need no comment to Montreal audiences. Roy Elkins was a very convincing figure and made one actually believe he was a living personality and also an excellent diplomatist.

Of the smaller parts, perhaps the best was that of Harry McKee, the director. Mr. McKee carried the character role of the evening, and discharged it with a manner that is most commendable. The character part is often the short touch that decides the success of a production, and so it is in "The Command to Love."

An Air Picture at the Princess

LACK of originality in the plot of "Flight," this week's attraction at the Princess, is ably compensated by the amusing dialogue between Jack Holt and Ralph Graves, the two leading stars, and by several excellent shots of the U.S. Marine Flying Corps doing stunt formations. Lila Lee plays the role of leading lady and, although handicapped by unbecoming costumes, fills in rather well. If you cared for "Submarine," you will like "Flight" as it follows the usual lines of the Holt-Graves films and, as such, is a much better production than any of their previous efforts.

The story is the usual one of the recruit who crashed, was relegated to mechanic, and then finally made good in an emergency to gain his wings. There are two main variations from the standard plot, the first being in a football game when the future flier becomes a goal and gains nation wide publicity by running the wrong way for a touchdown to defeat his own team and the second surprise coming when the hero fails to produce the customary bravery that calls for a presentation of medals. However everything else runs along smoothly in the expected manner, with Graves getting revenge for his loss of the girl in "Submarine" by winning her from Holt in "Flight."

In addition to the feature, several other all-talking attractions are offered, including a Tiffany-Stahl color production of Hawaiian music and dances, and a very funny and exceedingly original comic sketch called "Dance of the Skeletons."

At the Gayety

"Cracker Jacks," this week's show at the Gayety theatre, is somewhat unusual in being singularly free from offensive material. Few of the jokes are suggestive and the parodies are of a wholesome nature.

An attraction in the show is the singing duck, Oscar, who, with Lew Fine, quacks a lullaby. Mr. Fine is a dancer of note. There are scenes of ridiculous happenings on boats, in nightclubs, billiard rooms, music halls, at hospitals, circus grounds, boot black stands and police courts. Wava White, the leading lady, sings well, as does Zella Stevens, the soubrette.

Correspondence

The Editor,
McGill Daily,

Dear Sir,

Today's item telling of Commander Byrd's recent communication to Sir Arthur Currie contains the statement "There are many... who will remember Frank Davies, both as a student, and afterwards, as a demonstrator." This and the editorial, suggested by the message, both imply that Frank Davies spent his undergraduate days at McGill University.

As a matter of fact Mr. Davies is a graduate of the University of Wales. After having been on the staff of the University of Saskatchewan as a Demonstrator in Physics, he received his appointment in the Physics Department of McGill University.

I am afraid, Mr. Editor, that we of McGill can claim neither Frank Davies as an undergraduate nor that his spirit of adventure was acquired in our environment.

Yours truly,
D. A. Sampson
Med 4

The Editor,
McGill Daily,

Sir—

Certain recent events at McGill have demonstrated the existence of a state of facts which should not be allowed to continue, and for which I wish to propose a remedy.

Last Wednesday the McGill Debating Union planned to hold a debate in the Union. These debates are held regularly every two weeks and everyone is presumed to know of the plans of the Debating Union. Some two or three days before this date, the Players' Club decided to present on the same night and in another part of the Union Building two of its plays. The result was that the debate had to be postponed owing to the poor attendance.

The Daily of Friday, November 15, carried the following brief item: "The meeting of the Choral Society was postponed last night on account of conflict in time with the Music Club."

These examples speak for themselves. There is absolutely no regulation of the time and date of student functions, with the result that every society at one time or another must suffer from conflict. There is, as far as I know, no organization whose function it is to remedy this condition. There is a Committee on Undergraduate Social Functions, but this body is disciplinary in character.

I would propose that a committee be named whose duties shall be to regulate the dates of undergraduate events. It should be provided that any of the major campus organizations, such as the Debating Union, the Players' Club, the Red and White Revue, etc., should apply to this committee for a date for each of its meetings or performances, and that in this manner all conflicts between different societies should be avoided.

I do not wish to hold up any society on the campus as more deserving of support than any other. I merely wish to point out that, when two organizations meet on the same evening, one will suffer, and frequently that one will be the society which has more to offer in the line of intellectual improvement as apart from entertainment or amusement.

Yours,
Philip F. Foran.

The Editor,
McGill Daily,

Dear Sir,

It was with considerable surprise mingled with regret that I read today's editorial entitled "A Straw in the Wind." Splendid taste was shown in giving such publicity regarding an attempt of the Commerce Juniors in forming a Debating Society. However, the editorial columns rendered null all the benefit of the above publicity by continuing with the following sentences, "Hitherto Commerce has been regarded by some as a course especially designed for those desiring the benefits of a college education without the expenditure of too much energy or work," and further down the column this sentence appeared.

EMPLOYMENT

Students who have registered at The Bureau of Appointments and who wish to participate in The Santa Claus Parade on Saturday will please notify Miss Heasley.

"In Toronto, a man who passes his second year in Commerce is an object of reverence while here at McGill he is more likely to be regarded as a person who has spent two easy years in college." The writer of these sentences not only shows an utter lack of knowledge of the curriculum and work of the School of Commerce, but also a lack of pride for the University, by so insinuating that a special easy course was maintained by McGill. It is unfortunate that the faculty of Arts has in the past resorted to the practice of using the School of Commerce as a dumping ground for students, who for some slight technical reason, were ineligible for admission to the above faculty. What is more unfortunate, however, is the prominence given to such erroneous suggestion. It is a well known fact that by the system of honoring in Arts, the Seniors' subjects are narrowed down to but two, while the Commerce Senior is obliged to carry five full units, attend evening lectures, and delve into the practical side of what a liberal Arts education merely gives the theoretical. I am merely using the Arts faculty as an example, but with unbiased balancing of facts, there is little doubt as to which body has the heaviest schedule.

Let us take as much pride in our School of Commerce as other colleges do. It is a pride justly bestowed, and due recognition should be given to the value of Commercial courses. Remember, Mr. Editor, that a chain is as strong as its weakest link, and the School of Commerce can never be pointed to as weakening the splendid chain which embodies our educational system at McGill.

Sincerely,

Cyril R. Hill

Tread lightly, she is near
Under the snow,
Speak gently, she can hear
The daisies grow.

All her bright golden hair
Tarnished with rust,
She that was young and fair
Fallen to dust.

Lily-like, white as snow,
She hardly knew
She was a woman, so
Sweetly she grew.

Coffin board, heavy stone,
Lie on her breast,
I vex my heart alone,
She is at rest.

Peace, Peace, she cannot hear

All my life's buried here,
Heap earth upon it.

Senior Hockey Sextet Loses Opening Game

McGill Puckmen Drop Close
Game to Columbus, 3-2

ST. GERMAIN STARS

Canadiens Beat Vics. 1-0;
Senior Group Now
Under Way

In their first appearance of the season a fighting McGill senior hockey squad made a creditable showing to lose by the close score of 3 to 2 in the hands of Columbus in the second game of a regular double header staged by the Senior Group of the Q.A.A.A. in the premier encounter of the evening, Victorias last year's champions bowed to Canadians, a new entry to the league, 1 to 0.

The McGill-Columbus tussle was better received by the crowd and it was evident from the start that a vast majority of the fans were behind the students. The red team played hockey that was the surprise of the evening. Advance reports never expected the red and white puckchangers to come up to the showing of the fast-travelling Irishmen, let alone hold them to a scoreless first period and even lead them by one goal at the end of the second.

It was a heartbreaking game to lose. McGill started the first period with a rush. Ralph St. Germain was back in his old form, and he sent a burning one to Boyd, who saved nicely. Ward and Robertson combined to place the puck in a scoring position, only to be called back for an offside. The students had the crowd excited with their brilliant efforts. Klein, in goal for the redmen, made some beautiful saves as the Columbus forwards huddled around his net. McGill's defense showed up well in this period, both Hutchins and McGillivray being given great evasions by the fans. Farquarson managed to get through on a pretty piece of stick-handling but shot wild. Dinan, formerly of Bishops, and also playing in Senior company for the first time combined with Ward but Carter broke up the play. As the first stanza ended both teams were pressing hard, trying to score, and Klein and Boyd were given something to worry over.

Second Period.

It was in this period that the redmen played their best hockey. After about ten minutes of close, hectic play had been seen St. Germain broke up a Columbus rush at centre took the puck down to pass to Farquarson who was there to receive it, and poke the rubber past Boyd for the first encounter of the evening. It was a pretty piece of work and had the crowd in fever heat, with excitement. The Columbus squad retaliated with several burning shots on Klein who saved well.

McGill's second goal came about two minutes later when St. Germain took a face-off and whipped the puck past Boyd who was caught napping. With the score two to nothing in their favour the redmen let themselves go, bent on piling up a larger tally. At times their efforts proved too wild and Referee Bell sent McGillivray and Hutchins to the cooler. Columbus took advantage of the break and Munroe sneaked the puck past Klein to cut down the collections' lead to one goal as the period ended.

Third Period.

At the onset of this period the red squad were penalized severely much to the discontent of the howling crowd, and at one time had only two men on the ice. Columbus again took advantage and O'Connell evened the count after three minutes of play had elapsed. St. Germain came on again after a slight injury and went through the centre only to be thrown to the ice as he shot. Boyd saved, and Carter carried the rubber to let a fast go at Klein. The McGill goalie brushed the puck away while later Mullins let a long shot go that caught Klein unawares and the Irishmen took the lead. Both squads fought hard with McGill pressing as the period ended, but the redmen could not even the count.

Rowing Candidates

Coach Urbain Molmans will interview all prospective oarsmen, who wish to row on McGill's Champion Rowing Teams next summer, every week day starting today from 3 to 6 at the Stadium Field House.

Those interested should present themselves at the Field House as soon as possible. Entrance on University street through gate near stadium ticket booth.

Candidates should bring along a pair of running shoes and gym pants. At the Field House they will be met by club members, given a locker and introduced to the coach.

After a short work-out on one of the machines the coach will advise the future oarsmen what side they should row on. This will be followed by a little fatherly advice and then a refreshing shower and run-down will complete the day.

Basketeers Are In Fine Form

Pre-Season Play Augurs Well
for Success

With less than a month to go before the annual exhibition games with American Colleges takes place across the line, aspirants for the two senior teams which will represent McGill this year are rapidly rounding into shape.

Despite the fact that a number of the men have only been out for two or three practices, encouraging progress is noticed and many players are showing mid-season form.

Bob Calhoun showed plenty of speed offensively and strength defensively, and seems to have completely recovered from his side injury, which kept him on the side lines last week.

With the football season a thing of the past, Bunny Talbot made his first appearance of the year as did McBroem. Both men displayed their customary ability and should soon strike their real stride. Don Young has not yet turned but is expected to be seen at the next practice.

Faulkner and Small again showed some snappy combination that augurs well for the Red Team's potential scoring power. Hayden, Moore and Mel Rice were in excellent form for so early in the season, as was Sellars, who will probably make Don Young hustle to retain his place at centre.

With the entire squad displaying such good form under Coach Van Wagner's drilling, McGill should go a long way towards the Intercollegiate as well as City Championships this year. Varsity has lost a number of men including Newman and Beacom. Newman it will be remembered was a tower of strength on the Blue and White's forward line last year and played no small part in Varsity's success. Queens have practically the same team as last year, likewise Western.

In all pre-season dope points to four well balanced teams in the Intercollegiate league, with the Red Team's chances extremely bright.

Commerce Basketball

A practice will be held to-night at 6 o'clock in the M.H.S. Gym. All players are requested to be on time as this is the last practice before the first league game. The following must report: Morris Elias Holdingsworth, William Woodman, Edith Cross, Orntleit, Dodd, Longstaff, Elbitt, Allison, Scott, Crabtree, Devitt, McIntyre, Smellie and any others.

JUNIORS TIE

Redmen Hold Their Blue
Rivals to a One All
Score

Unwilling as the world is to accept the facts, McGill's Senior Water Polo team scored a win last night. Piling up a lead of two goals over the M.A.A.A. "Blues" in the first half when shooting into the deep end, they held tight in the second period, and came out on the long end of a four to three score. The juniors held the junior "Blues" to a one all draw, though they had the advantage over them in every department but shooting.

Starting right from the whistle, Neil Buckley played the odd man stunt to get free in the centre of the tank and score inside of thirty seconds. Aubrey Shackell added another long one when an attempted shot by Bourne fell short. Ben Morwood scored a beauty for M.A.A.A. on a pass into the shallow end. Shackell scored his second to give McGill a lead of two goals at half time.

McGill as usual began to, taken in the second period, and after dominating the play for some time, the Blues scored when Scott was left free in front of the goal. Penalties were being handed out heavily to both sides. M.A.A.A. were still dominating but the tide turned when Bourne and Gib-

Gibbons was absolutely free, and sank the ball in the unguarded net. Warrington added a last goal for the Blues when left uncovered in the deep end. McGill scored a goal which was cancelled when the final whistle blew with the ball in the air and heading for the back of the goal.

Three Rings Ready for Devotes of Manly Sport

AT FIELD HOUSE

Starting from to-day the boxing practices will take place in the Field House. The B.W. & F. manager has just announced that three rings are being constructed in the three upper lofts of the House. It has been decided to discontinue the practices in the High School owing to the fact that the class Basketball games conflict with the Boxing hours.

Bert Light has decided to conduct his classes on a slightly different basis this year. From now on the main emphasis will be laid on the actual boxing, and callisthenics will occupy a secondary position. This does not mean that they will be discontinued altogether. There will be more road work however. The boxers are all advised to bring up an old pair of long trousers, a heavy sweater and an old pair of shoes, because Bert intends to have them show their speed around the stadium track. When asked what he intended to do when there was snow on the ground, he answered: "Keep on running. The professionals in Montreal run all winter and we are going to also. It will be heavy running but that is what the boys need."

The three rings will be kept functioning continuously. The men will first have a run around the field and will spend the rest of the time fighting. There is going to be no more dancing around and patting each other on the back; but pure hard ring work. A permanent ring has been a long felt need amongst the McGill Boxers and now that they have three of them, they are out to take the collegiate honours which have remained away from home for so long.

All men are asked to turn up at the Field House at 5 P.M. to-day. All the wire baskets from the High School have already been removed up; so there need be no worry about gear. Lockers will be allotted this afternoon.

The elimination bouts will start on Thursday and the draw will be announced in Wednesday's Daily. Bert

Light intends to get a prospective team picked out as soon as possible, in order to give them more individual attention. The final boxing however, will not be known until after the College Assault which will take place early in February. Now that the Rugby season is over it is expected that there will be some additions to the heavier weights. Anyone who thinks he has any talent, or body that can stand a few punches is asked to turn out as soon as possible. Bill Eakin announces that there is a prospective meet with the University of New Hampshire on Feb. 28 in Durham. The plans are however still (Continued on page four) of the oath of Hippocrates, an oath formulated by Hippocrates, the father of medicine five hundred years before Christ, and standing still, much of it as applicable today as the day it was written. Until a few years ago, all students graduating from McGill had to subscribe to this code. The novitiate swears that he will do everything for the benefit of the patient, will give no deadly medicine, will keep inviolate the confidences of his patients, and will practise his art with purity and with nobleness.

Golden Rule Is Still Basis Of Medical Ethics

Three Principles

All the schools of ethics, and codes of different countries that have been drawn up are somewhat the same. They all lay down three principles as the cornerstones of the ethical edifice.

1. The relation of the medical practitioner to his colleagues; all of which is expressed in the golden rule.
2. His relation to the patient, the interests and well being of the sick as the supreme law.
3. His relation to the state, well put in the words from the gospel "Render therefore unto Caesar the things that be Caesar's".

Etiquette

Professional etiquette, the speaker brought out, refers merely to the conventions of the medical profession. And manners are based on good morals, and the medical etiquette is devised to direct a new member of the profession along the new and hitherto untried ways of his profession.

Some of the customs for usages that were enumerated were as follows:

1. A new practitioner, on entering a new community, should call on his medical brethren and announce his aim and intention.
  2. Consultations should be sought in all doubtful, or difficult cases. The offer of consultation should come from the physician first, not from the relatives.
  3. A patient is always at liberty to change his physician. He is expected to notify the physician by letter in doing so.
  4. No emergency call must ever be refused. The physician must go himself or find a substitute.
  5. The laws regarding minors must be regarded. Medical conditions may be revealed to guardians in the case of minors. In cases of adults no other person may be informed without the consent of the patient—not even the parents.
  6. It is infamous conduct, in a medical sense, to patent a medicine or appliance, and then sell it for gain. It savours of the quack.
  7. Experience has shown that it is unwise for a physician to treat members of his own family. This service should be done by a brother in the profession without charge.
- It takes roughly $20,000 to make a doctor it has been estimated, and there are about nine thousand of them in Canada. It is a large Medical Guild, the speaker brought out, and the code of ethics constitutes the conscience, as it were of the association.
- The business before the address consisted chiefly of the presentation of the case report by Copping. Consultation by the student physicians brought out a number of opinions, which were satisfactorily settled by the finding that a perforating duodenal ulcer had been doing the mischief to the patient, a sailor.

Co-Eds Paint And Powder To Attract Mere Man

"It always takes longer than I think it will, so I'm never ready on time," said one despairing co-ed to the "Varsity" in answer to the statistic gathering questions regarding how much time is spent by college girls getting ready for dates.

"Well," said another, "it takes about an hour for a tub and dressing, and then an awful struggle to get the powder to stick on my nose." The group laughed sympathetically, and some one added "It always takes me at least ten minutes more to make sure I have a hankie and comb, and if I have put on long gloves for a dance, I try to allow fifteen minutes for the ordeal."

"Men never appreciate our looks anyway, so I just rush. I can get ready in fifteen minutes for any kind of a date," was the contributing remark of a Victoria lassie.

"Would you count a time spent buying hose and perfume and powder and lipstick?" "The Varsity" inquired. "Yes," she answered after a moment. "In fact all in all I think most girls spend fully half their time getting ready for dates. Not just the actual immediate pre-date preparation, but all things leading up to it. Washing your hair, getting your shoes cleaned, pressing your dresses, fussing over dress patterns, getting the right frame of mind."

"An hour a day will keep your clothes in order and that long will look after shampoos and such things," then say an hour to assemble the picture. Well, even if you have a date every day, that's not more than three hours," exclaimed a peppy St. Hilda's freshe.

The whole group decided that it was well worth the time and effort to feel just right, and to see the admiring gleam in the "date's" eyes, even if he had waited twenty minutes.

Satisfied, "The Varsity" departed, with the conviction that the time might be wasted, but the end justified the means.

Student Will Stage Flight During Week

The advisory committee, he said, comprises Dr. Eve, Professor McKergow, Major Forbes, and myself and if you don't like us, then kick us out. This suggestion was met with great disapproval as these men have done all they can to further the cause of aviation at McGill. Col. Bovey then outlined the remainder of the course.

There will be lectures by such celebrities as Captain Spooner, Professor McKergow, Professor Kelley, and Commandant Quedru, Chairman of the Air Safety Committee, and President of La Compagnie Aerienne Franco-Canadienne. These men will speak upon every aspect of Canadian Aviation. We owe a great deal to these lecturers who so unselfishly help the club, stated Col. Bovey, and we can show our appreciation by having a large audience. In mentioning the many commercial uses of aircraft today the speaker told of how bank clearings are transported from city to city by aeroplanes and in this way enough money has been saved to entirely pay for the service.

The Flying Captain, Mr. Kimball, then gave his report. To date there has been five hour's dual, and over and hour's solo instruction; the chief performers being Messrs Morrison, LeMoine, Hutcheson, and Kimball. Now that the new members are beginning to pay their fees these figures will swell considerably.

Ladies Welcome

In answer to the many communications from various co-eds the President replied that the ladies are always welcome, and will be given full membership with all the privileges of the men.

The speaker of the meeting was Captain Finnie of the Curtiss-Reid Aircraft Company, who urged that, if all air-minded students of McGill spent a minimum of one hour a month in the air, they would be assured of a living in the future. He declared that the more you fly the better you like it, and incidentally the better you get. It is because pilots don't keep up their flying and constantly exercise the accidents of to-day occur, he stated.

Next Monday at eight P.M. Professor McKergow will give a lecture on "Resistance, Thrust, and Power". In the meantime it is the duty of every student to back McGill's first pioneer air adventure.

were 63 women in residence in the annex and Royal Victoria College. This number dropped back to 60 during the college session of 1928-29.

73 in Residence

However during all these years the number of applicants for rooms was always greatly in excess of those available and this year it was decided to open a new annex in an attempt to accommodate the overflow. Accordingly space was rented in the Apartments at the corner of Sherbrooke and Shuter Streets. At present there are 73 women students in residence in the two annexes and the Royal Victoria College.

The Royal Victoria College was founded and endowed by the late Rt. Hon. Baron Strathcona and Mount Royal. On September 4th, 1899 the College was opened and formally inaugurated by their Majesties the King and Queen (then Duke and Duchess of York) in 1901. The College building, surrounded by garden and tennis courts, was erected at a cost of about $400,000. Its beautiful and dignified exterior was designed in consistency with a careful and generous internal provision for a comfortable and gracious place of study and dwelling for students and staff.

The building is fire-proof throughout and provides an academic, administrative and recreational centre for resident and non-resident students. On the ground floor are the offices of the Administrative, the faculty rooms, the students common room, a spacious dining hall and three lecture rooms. On the first floor are lecture rooms, the library, and a handsome assembly hall. The second and third floors and a small part of the first floor are occupied by the rooms of Resident staff and students. The College also has a large gymnasium.

Parties Hold Wind-up Today

Minister was burnt in effigy by a mob of women here last night after listening to the policies of the government as interpreted by A. M. Klein, a member of the shadow cabinet of the opposition.

Insulting epithets were hurled at the rag figure of the Rt. Hon. L. C. Carroll, as it was being consumed by the flames. The women were standing round carrying placards on broomsticks, high above their heads, denouncing the present government and its proposed legislation. One of the signs borne by a member of the mob read: "What does THAT BACHELOR know about women, and where they belong", referring to the premier's abstinence from leading anyone to the altar.
